

What they say

The IER has worked tirelessly for a legal system that protects people at work. Workers should be supported, not restricted by legislation. Repeatedly the Institute has been at the forefront of protecting workers rights and the radical interpretation of the law. Their efforts should be commended by all.

Len McCluskey, Unite the Union

The TUC has a long and fruitful association with the IER. Working together we've built a strong case for decent employment and trade union rights. We've won the argument. Now we need to win the campaign.

Frances O'Grady, TUC

The IER brings together front line trade unionists and the leading experts to give the best possible critique of employment law and the Government.

Dave Prenis, UNISON

About the Institute

The Institute of Employment Rights seeks to develop an alternative approach to labour law and industrial relations and makes a constructive contribution to the debate on the future of trade union freedoms.

We provide the research, ideas and detailed legal arguments to support working people and their unions by calling upon the wealth of experience and knowledge of our unique network of academics, lawyers and trade unionists.

The Institute is not a campaigning organisation, nor do we simply respond to the policies of the government. Our aim is to provide and promote ideas. We seek not to produce a 'consensus' view but to develop new thoughts, new ideas and a new approach to meet the demands of our times.
